It was in the 1600s, when the whole Europe was covered in the veil of ignorance — the renaissance came like a holy lightness of being and transformed the society on a whole. However, it was not a one-day phenomenon. To challenge and eliminate the authority of Popes & clergymen, there came minds like Galileo, Copernicus etc. Their fate was not very kind and in the process they suffered a lot of backlash. For Galileo, it was exile for life for uttering out the truth and encouraging scientific thinking among masses.

But it did not stop them, and inquisitive minds continued to grow

Gandhiji and NAM (Non-aligned Movement). We have successfully rolled out the Carbon tax for greener future to reduce our Carbon footprint. With the application of EVM machine and Electoral Bonds we tend to reduce the brutal nexus among parties.

To conclude, we must agree to the simple notion that often it is not our outward situation that makes us vulnerable but the mindset. With the right mindset and approach we can avoid the situations that are harmful to us and become Arijuna, or
